Paralysis [Gr. paralysis, a letting go, paralysis] Ger. Paralyse; Fr. paralysie; Ital. paralisi. A partial or complete degree of Paralysis (q.v.) weakness is the usual result of a lesion (q.v.) of the cord or of the peripheral nerves. The true term is not included in the Paralytic group. For the true term see Paralysie, and Paralysis, general.

Paralyzed (Ger. nicht ganz; Fr. paralysé; Ital. paralizzato). A term applied to various conditions of partial or complete disease of the central nervous system. The term is synonymous with paralysis.

Paralysia [Gr. paralysia, a letting go, paralysis] Ger. Paralyse; Fr. paralysie; Ital. paralisi. A term used in medicine to denote a condition of partial or complete loss of power, sensation, or movement, due to disease of the central nervous system, especially of the spinal cord. It is synonymous with paralysis.

Paralysis [Gr. paralysis, a letting go, paralysis] Ger. Paralyse; Fr. paralysie; Ital. paralisi. A term used in medicine to denote a condition of partial or complete loss of power, sensation, or movement, due to disease of the central nervous system, especially of the spinal cord. It is synonymous with paralysis.

Paralysing (Ger. paralysierend; Fr. paralysant; Ital. paralizzante). A term applied to various conditions of partial or complete disease of the central nervous system. The term is synonymous with paralysis.