The Nation.

[Vol. 73, No. 1857]

July 30, 1903

The principal merit of the book, we feel, is to be found in its power to entertain, to give us a glimpse of the life of a man who has been so intimate a companion of the world of thought, so thoroughly familiar with its habits and customs, so full of its knowledge, so well imbued with its spirit, so possessed of its very soul. It is written in a style which is as genuine and natural as life itself, and it is a pleasure to read. The author has a wonderful power of describing things, of putting them into words, of making them live and move and breathe in the reader's mind. His style is simple, concise, direct, and always in keeping with the thought it is expressing. The book is a masterpiece of literary art, and it is a fitting tribute to the memory of one who has done so much for our country and for the cause of freedom. We have no doubt that it will be read and enjoyed by all who take an interest in public affairs, and we believe that it will long remain as one of the most valuable contributions to the literature of our time.

[CLERICAL ATTITUDES]

Protests in Latin America.

With 19 plates and 80 figures in the text.

The second notice of this work will be of interest to all who are, or have been, interested in the study of the history of the Middle Ages. It is written in a lively and entertaining style, and it is full of interesting information. The author has done his work thoroughly, and he has shown a wonderful knowledge of the subjects he has treated. The book is a valuable addition to our knowledge of the history of the Middle Ages, and we believe that it will be read and enjoyed by all who take an interest in this subject. It is a work of great importance, and it is a fitting tribute to the memory of one who has done so much for our country and for the cause of freedom. We have no doubt that it will be read and enjoyed by all who take an interest in public affairs, and we believe that it will long remain as one of the most valuable contributions to the literature of our time. We have no doubt that it will be read and enjoyed by all who take an interest in public affairs, and we believe that it will long remain as one of the most valuable contributions to the literature of our time.