March 24, 1904

The Nation

[Fragment of text not fully visible]

University continues to do the work of the American system's "New England" phase, dealing with the German universities, etc. In the United States, the author gives a readable and interesting study of the history of German universities of the last generation. He tells the story of Harvard's relations with the universities of Europe, while dealing with the German universities, etc. He states that Germany's educational system is the best in the world, and the American educational system is the worst. He states that the educational system of Germany is the best in the world, and the American educational system is the worst. He states that the educational system of Germany is the best in the world, and the American educational system is the worst.